

Mail jumper

Elaine Kanelos, 18, is one of two girls who have been serving aboard a Lake Geneva boat this summer as mail jumpers They jump off the moving passenger boat, put the mail in mailboxes on piers and jump back onto the boat (AP Wirephoto)

Mail girl's job keeps her jumping to stay dry

LAKE GENEVA WIS (AP) — The advertisement is intriguing

"Take the mailboat cruise Watch Linda jump the mail onto 55 piers while the boat moves "

The mailboat is the Walworth II which carries boat mail and passengers on its regular pierside route It makes all mail deliveries to residents of this 26-mile shoreline during the warm months because it s quicker than the roadside auto delivery used during the winter

Linda is 23 year-old Linda Frame the "mailgirl" who jumps from the moving boat She stuffs letters into pier mail boxes for the residents and then dashes back down the dock to leap onto the boat which is moving about 12 to 15 miles per hour The boat doesn't stop because it's primarily for sightseers and stopping would be too costly and time consuming

"The driver doesn't stop or slow down for anything, said Linda If you don t make it, you get dunked Then you have to run down the shoreline to get the boat at the next pier "

The deck of the boat is level to the pier when Linda takes her jump, usually a couple of feet in distance

She hasn't been dunked yet in her two weeks on the job, is actually the second girl to "jump the mail," as locals call their deliveries

Elaine Kanelos, 18, who quit earlier this month to return to school in Colorado, was the first mailgirl in the 70 year history of the Lake Geneva mailboat The lake is about 50 miles southwest of Milwaukee

She took her share of dunkings, to the applause of the 100 or more passengers who jammed the boat daily to witness her heart-stopping pier-to-boat leaps that often left her sputtering in the water as the boat pulled away

Linda, who is paid $2 20 per hour for a 40-hour work week, said she enjoys the cheers and jeers of the tourists as she dashes and leaps her way through her two-hour mailboat run And she says she doesn t mind delivering mail six days a week and then making the same run on Sundays to deliver newspapers

"I've always liked all kinds of sports, and this really keeps me in shape " she said

High-level talks seek Cyprus peace

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides met with Greek government leaders Friday in Athens Resumption of the Geneva peace talks appeared no nearer after the three hour session but an official Greek source indicated favor toward a Sovietproposed international conference

We are warm to the idea because it has internationalized the issue and therefore helps our position ' the source said

On Cyprus troops and civilians saved centuries old relics from a Nicosia church threatened by a fire at an adjacent school that U N troops said was ignited by Turkish grenades

Clerides met with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis, Foreign Minister George Mavros and Defense Minister Evanghelos Averoff-Tositsas

An official communique issued at the end of the discussions did not say whether the talks touched on the Soviet plan, which calls for a meeting of the 15 member nations of the U N Security Council plus Greece, Turkey and Cyprus

At U N headquarters in New York, Soviet Ambassador Jacob A Malik formally consulted other Security Council members on the proposal, but Western diplomats there dismissed the proposal as a propaganda maneuver

The United States said it was studying the proposal which would substitute the international conference for the currently recessed Geneva conference That conference, attended by Greece, Turkey and Britain, broke down Aug 13 after Greece rejected Turkish proposals to make Cyprus a federal state

Clerides is expected to return to Nicosia today to receive U N Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Waldheim is to meet also with Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash before traveling to Athens and Ankara for talks with Greek and Turkish government leaders

Senior U N officials reported that Turkish troops were continuing to apply pressure including threats of violence, to force the U N peace force out of northern Cyprus

U N troops have been forced by the Turks to abandon Greek Cypriot refugees marooned in Kyrenia and in the nearby village of Bellapais

"Now the Turks want us out of Famagusta and Lefka," said a senior officer in an interview at U N headquarters

The postwar job of the 4,600man U N force in Cyprus is to try to prevent violations of the cease-fire, to help exchange prisoners and to perform relief operations for some of the 150,000 or more refugees on the island

The U S government is not considering a shift in NATO military defenses from Greece and Turkey, a State Department spokesman said Friday

"We consider Greece an important and valuable member of the alliance and we are not thinking of any alternative means of protecting its southern flank," said spokesman Robert Anderson

His remarks were in response to questions about a published report quoting Premier Bulent Ecevit of Turkey as saying his country could compensate for any weaknesses in U S defenses in the Mediterranean caused by Greece's military withdrawal from NATO

Food costs expected to be up 15 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail food prices now are expected to continue rising for the rest of the year to a level about 15 per cent above 1973, the Agriculture Department said Friday

They could go even higher, an economist said The department had been saying that a 12 per cent rise was most likely, and that most of it already has occurred

Last year, food prices rose 14 5 per cent above the 1972 average That increase was the highest since a 21 per cent jump between 1945 and 1946

The department also released its July market basket survey showing that the average family's yearly food costs actually declined three-tenths of one per cent in July The market basket measures the amount a hypothetical urban wage earner's family of 3 2 persons would spend on food in a year

The figure is still 12 9 per cent above mid-summer 1973, just before a record monthly increase last August

The figures showed that for the first time since February, the prices farmers received rose, while retailers' and wholesalers' share of the grocery shoppers' dollar fell

The report on the national food situation revised the department's prediction range for the average 1974 food-price jump to 13 to 17 per cent instead drought became clearer But the economists said that "we felt we just had to give a little more on the upward side "

Instead of remaining steady from July through September and declining from October through December, food prices now could show a climb of as of 8 to 16 per cent

The final figure depends largely on the weather this fall and on price based changes in demand by consumers, livestock feeders and exporters, an economist on the Outlook and Situation Board said

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L Butz had estimated a 14 per cent rise just two weeks ago as the effects of severe much as 6 or 7 per cent more for the last six months of this year, about half of it coming in each quarter

The economists analysis of the food situation as of mid-August also projects

—An increase in per capita food consumption of 1 5 per cent over last year's slump, to record high level even though animal-related products will only recover their 1973 losses

—A fall in over-all production of U S farm food for 1974, with a nearly 8 per cent decline in crops more than offsetting a 4 per cent rise in livestock

—A possible decline in exports of farm foods to more than 10 per cent below the 1973 record

Rockefeller opposes Nixon prosecution

SEAL HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A Rockefeller said Friday "the tone and mood" of the country is that former President Richard M Nixon should not face criminal prosecution in the Watergate case

Rockefeller endorsed a statement by Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, who said two days after Nixon's resignation that he should face no further action

In two news conferences at his vacation home here, Rockefeller said he thought Scott's was a very good expression, but declined to elaborate on his own views about prosecution

"I don't know about the legal arguments," the former New York governor said at the second of those sessions

At the first news conference, Rockefeller was asked whether he would support amnesty for Nixon He replied by citing Scott's Aug 11 statement

Scott said then that most congressional leaders "would wish that nothing further happens to former President Nixon

"Everyone hopes we can say enough is enough," Scott said "This is the end There has been a pound of flesh Hanging is enough without drawing and quartering "

After quoting part of the Scott statement Rockefeller said "I thought it was a very good expression "

He also said, "It doesn't seem to me, as he said, that he (Nixon) should in addition be drawn and quartered "

Later in the day, Rockefeller held a second news conference for newsmen who had not been on hand at the first Asked directly whether he personally opposed prosecution of Nixon, Rockefeller said, "I don't know about the legal arguments," and again quoted Scott

He said the Scott statement "reflected the mood and the atmosphere of the Congress and the American people "

He disclosed that, although he has known President Ford for years, "the first time I sat down and talked to him" was a year ago when he urged the then House Republican leader to join his Commission on Critical Choices

A number of the questions at the news conferences dealt with whether his nomination for the vacant vice presidency meant an end to his long quest for the presidency, barring any unexpected happening

He called such speculation "totally irrelevant" and said the country has so many serious problems that it would be "thoroughly distasteful" to speculate about future political matters

The only person he consulted about whether to accept the vice presidency, he said, was his wife Happy, who joined him at the first news conference She said she is "thrilled as a concerned citizen" over her husband's nomination

Attorney Kunstler jailed at AIM trial

ST PAUL, Minn (AP) — A U S District Court Judge ordered attorneys William Kunstler and Mark Lane jailed Friday following a courtroom disruption during the Wounded Knee trial

U S District Judge Fred Nichol ordered marshals to take Kunstler and Lane into custody during the noisy, disorderly end to Friday's session

Two American Indian Movement (AIM) members, who refused to leave their seats, were carried out by marshals, and one officer used a chemical spray on another protestor

Nichol met with other lawyers in his chambers after recessing court but declined to back down from his decision to jail Kunstler and Lane on charges of contempt of court The attorneys were booked at the St Paul jail

Although Nichol did not indicate how long he intended Kunstler and Lane to remain in jail, he said he might reconsider his order Saturday morning

Kunstler and Lane are among five attorneys representing Russell Means and Dennis Banks, accused of assault, larceny and conspiracy in the 71day armed occupation of Wounded Knee, S D , last year

Kunstler was making an exhaustive cross-examination of a government rebuttal witness when the incident began

After one question there was subdued murmuring and laughter from a row of spectators

"I've been noticing that group of AIM people for some time," said Nichol He said he'd been generous in allowing sympathizers of the defendants to have considerable spectator space, but they hadn't abided by his warning not to talk or laugh

He then ordered "Marshals, clear that third row of spectators '

Marshals then carried out Clyde and Vernon Bellecourt, two hefty brothers and leaders in the AIM movement Marshals also dragged out a young woman About three others in the row left but not before one of them, identified as Maynard Stanley, was sprayed by mace when he tried to pull a marshal away from Clyde Bellecourt

While the ouster of spectators was going on, Nichol bristled at objections from the defense, led by Kunstler

"I'm getting sick and tired of this," said Nichol "I'm warning you, Mr Kunstler, I can send you to jail "

When Kunstler continued his protest against removal of the spectators, the judge warned he would have marshals remove him Lane interjected and the judge asked, "Do you want to go to jail too?"

There was a further exchange and Kunstler tossed a pencil to the floor and said I don't care "

Nichol then ordered marshals to escort the two from the courtroom

Impoundment permitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall issued an order Friday permitting the federal government to continue impounding highway funds until an appeals court has ruled on the question

Marshall's order sets aside temporarily a decision issued May 7 by U S District Judge Robert W Hemphill of Columbia, S C , blocking federal officials from withholding highways funds for South Carolina projects

Hemphill said the impoundments were unconstitutional and illegal

The government has appealed his decision to the U S Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va Marshall's order will remain in effect until the circuit court has ruled

Record on Reserve case closed

ST PAUL, Minn (AP) — A U S District Judge closed the record in one of the nation's most complicated and far reaching environmental cases Friday, leaving the Reserve Mining Co litigation in the hands of the 8th U S Circuit Court of Appeals and ultimately the U S Supreme Court

After 388 days of almost continuous courtroom activity, Judge Miles Lord entered a final judgement which read ' The evidence on the merit of this case is closed "

With his order Lord granted a motion by the U S Justice Department and the State of Minnesota designed to hasten the 8th Circuit's determination of the trial

Last April 20 after hearing more than nine months of testimony, Judge Lord closed Reserve's Silver Bay Minn taconite plant after finding that its discharge of waste rock into Lake Superior constituted a public health threat because of the presence of asbestos fibers

After a two-day shutdown however, the plant has remained open under a series of delays granted by a three judge panel of the 8th circuit That panel said the trial's evidence did not support Lord s claim that the presence of the fibers in the tailings constituted an imminent health hazard

Plaintiffs have attempted without success to get the matter before the nation's high court but the Circuit Court said it would not make a final determination until Lord disposed of the separate pollution aspect

By making the motion for final judgement, the U S Government and the State of Minnesota are, in effect, gambling that there is enough evidence in the record to sustain their contention that Reserve is polluting Lake Superior as well as perpetuating a public health risk

While the 8th Circuit is not bound to accept Lord's termination of the pollution case, the plaintiffs clearly hope that appellate court will do just that This, they say, could focus all attention on public health and the search for an on-land tailings disposal site

The three-judge panel has pushed both Reserve and the state to consider the Lax Lake area, some five miles from Silver Bay, as a dump On Tuesday the panel expects to hear whether Reserve can accept the site and whether the state will commit its permission for the company to develop there

Reserve has publicly expressed reservations about any site other than its preferred Palisades Creek site

Higher oil prices, gas tax could have $20 billion impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — American consumers would pay about $20 billion in higher oil prices and taxes if the Ford administration agrees to decontrol oil prices and place a new 10-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, Sen Henry M Jackson, D Wash , said Friday

"The implementation of these proposals would increase every electric bill, every heating oil bill, every gasoline bill in America," Jackson told a news conference "The impact on consumers would be devastating "

Jackson criticized President Ford's inherited economic advisers — principally Roy Ash, chief of Office of Management and Budget — for the steps the administration is reportedly considering

They would mean that the price of so-called "old" domestic crude oil would be allowed to rise from the present controlled price of $5 25 per barrel to around $10 or $11 per barrel, he said

Jackson said that step would cost the oil-consuming public about $9 4 billion per year in added fuel costs

The 10-cent tax would add almost $10 billion to the public's gas bill at current rates of consumption," he said

"Thus, in the midst of a 10 per cent inflation, the administration is considering steps that would cost the American people at least $20 billion

"And it would create enormous windfall profits for oil producers without adding one ounce to domestic production '

"Old" domestic crude oil refers to that amount of oil production inside the United States that is equal to or below 1972 production levels

The proposal to allow the prices of such oil to increase is said to come from an administration working paper prepared by officials of the President s Council of Economic Advisers and the Federal Energy Administration White House officials said Thursday the tax increase is one of many plans under consideration to reduce inflation

Ford avoiding wild moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford views America's economic problems as "very grievous" but wants to avoid a wild, scattered attack on them, his spokesman said Friday

As Ford completed his second week in office, Press Secretary Jerald F terHorst spoke of the President's desire to come up with a package of solutions to the problems of inflation, rising prices and high interest rates

TerHorst indicated that announcement of these proposals would not come until after an economic summit conference scheduled for late September

The President, he said, does not want to "act in cowboy fashion someone who runs down the middle of the street and shoots at both sides without a specific target "

But terHorst said Ford wants to remain flexible enough so that if specific economic problems demand attention he can "move on them independently "

As the spokesman was discussing the economy, Ford was completing an hour-long meeting with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam

During the Oval Office session also attended by Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger, terHorst said, Ford stressed Syria's "underlying importance" in efforts to achieve permanent peace in the Middle East

The meeting with Khaddam was part of a series of sessions Ford is holding with Arab and Israeli leaders to prepare for the next stage of Middle East negotiations

Ford conferred privately with Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield in the Oval Office as part of what a spokesman said would be a continuing series of sessions with key senators and congressmen

National nuns group applauds ordination of 11 Episcopalian women

ST LOUIS — The 650 nuns attending the recent National Assembly of Women Religious (NAWR) here overwhelmingly approved the controversial ordination of 11 women to the priesthood in the Episcopal Church

Among those participating was Sister Jovita Winkel CSA, Hortonville, representing the Green Bay Diocesan Sisters Council She is a former president of the council and was the chairperson for the Wisconsin delegation meetings

As the first order of business, the association sent the following telegram to the convention of Episcopal Bishops in Chicago

"As we begin our fourth assembly, we join in prayer for the success of your deliberations in Chicago and we urge you to affirm and recognize the ordinations in Philadelphia We view these ordinations as a sign of hope authenticating the ministry of women in the church and a valid response to the Gospel values of human dignity, service and justice

NAWR said it sees the ordinations as an occasion of joy because the event was a "clear response in obedience to the Lordship of Christ" and at the same time, a cause of some dismay because of the "irregular nature of the ordination

After the Episcopal bishops voted not to validate the ordinations, however, the nuns assembly sent telegrams of regret to the 11 women whose ordinations were declared 'invalid" The communication promised continued prayerful support for the women and the three bishops who officiated in their ordination

A separate telegram to the head of the ruling body of the Episcopal Church read

"We regret the decision of the House of Bishops and hope for a considered review of this matter and eventual recognition of full participation of women in official ministry" According to a news release from NAWR, the statement by the group was initially sent in recognition that ecumenical considerations — fear of slowing down dialogue with Roman Catholics— have delayed the legal reforms that would allow the ordination of Episcopal women to the priesthood

The association, in other actions, also voiced its support in the fight to eliminate world hunger

In a statement, the group confirmed, "We, being sensitive to the uneven distribution of the land and enslavement of people because of hunger, hope to encourage women religious throughout the country to rededicate themselves to living simply and to expressing continuing, practical concern for poor people everywhere"

In addition, the conference urged the president and the Congress to vote for an immediate increase in food aid and the building of a world food security program

'Secularistic, humanistic world view' lamented by U.S. bishops in document

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Religious faith today is engaged in a head-on conflict in America with a "secularistic, humanistic world view" which rejects transcendant beliefs and absolute moral values, say U S Roman Catholic bishops

In a review of current trends in this country, they add that the key question now is whether church members still get their "fundamental beliefs and attitudes" from Christianity or from surrounding secular values of society

General indications now are that "for a large number of Catholics, the influence of a secular society — and all that implies for good as well as ill — counts more heavily than the influence of the church," the bishops say

They summed up their views of tendencies in this country in a paper prepared for the international Synod of Bishops, which meets at the Vatican in Rome beginning Sept 27

"Both secular society and organized religion are passing through a time of rapid and dramatic change," the bishops say "It is probable that both will be different in significant ways in the future"

While some bishops optimistically see the current uncertainties about basic values as the birth pangs of a more conscientious purposefulness, the report says, others say the situation "reflects decadence and portends collapse"

Whatever the case, "it is generally recognized that the positive influence of organized religion on public policy and public morality has declined sharply in the United States in recent years," the bishops say

Noting the difficulties of organized religion as indicated in declining membership, attendance and contributions, the report adds

"Polarization and ferment are widespread in the Church The shortage of vocations to the priesthood and religious life remains a serious problem departures from the active ministry continue at a disturbingly high rate"

Historically, the document notes that American Catholics until recent years "lived in a certain isolation from attitudes and values which prevailed in the larger society," emphasizing distinctive beliefs and practices

"This state of affairs has changed markedly," the bishops say, adding that the situation now points up the central issue of whether Church members are to take their basic guidance from the Church or secular society

Their tendency to accept society's dominant attitudes "appears in data indicating that many Catholics are tolerant of abortion, at least in some circumstances," reject official Church teachings against contraception and have a divorce rate almost matching that of other Americans, the bishops say, adding

"Catholic beliefs and values no longer occupy the same central place in their lives that they did in the lives of their parents and grandparents And their attitude toward the magisterium (bishops) is ambivalent at best"

Nevertheless, for some Catholics religious beliefs still hold "a position of centrality," the bishops say They observe that since present changes came on so speedily new changes in direction may come equally fast

"Many observers feel that a profound spiritual renewal is now taking place among many American Catholics," the report says citing a variety of newly developing centers and movements of spirituality

'American Catholicism is changing not collapsing," the bishops conclude

And while a period of change is not a time for complacency neither is it a time for gloom'

Tietjen strongly reaffirms his stand on heresy hearing

ST LOUIS — The Rev John H Tietjen suspended president of Concordia Seminary, has sent a letter to the Concordia board, declaring that he will not appear before a faculty hearing committee Friday in St Louis

The hearing was to bring together the accusers, Tietjen and three faculty committeemen to investigate the heresy charges against Tietjen

In declaring that he will not appear before the committee, Tietjen reaffirmed statements he made when the board suspended him in January on charges of false doctrine At that time he said he would "take no further action in my own defense"

He added, "The present proceedings being conducted by the board on the basis of the bylaws offer no possibility of a fair and impartial judgment They are the result of collusion between the president of the synod, the six majority members of the board of control and by two accusers" (One of the latter is the Rev Leonard Buelow, Green Bay)

'They are a charade in which my two accusers and the majority members of the board are seeking to fulfill the letter of the bylaws for the purpose of reaching a predetermined objective, already publicly announced by the president to remove me from office and from the pastoral ministry of the synod, Tietjen continued

"Though I will gladly give a reason for the hope that is in me to anyone who asks, I will remain silent in further proceedings based on that bylaw'

He concludes his letter by saying, "I urge you to reconsider your actions There is no way for you to escape the judgment of God that has already descended on you and that will continue to afflict you for your disdain of our Lord's injunction in Matthew 18 (Christ's warning to His disciples to be humble, avoid offenses and not to despise the little ones, to deal fairly with brethren when they offend, and to forgive), and for your perpetration of injustice through your violation of God's commandments"

He further writes, "I pray that our loving Father, who has atoned for our sins through the sacrificial death of His Son on a cross, will be merciful to you"

Bishop will preach on world hunger

GREEN BAY — The Most Rev Aloysius Wycislo, bishop of Green Bay, will address Catholics in the diocese via tape Saturday and Sunday on the world food crisis

In his message, Wycislo will ask Catholics to eat less one day a week and contribute their food savings to the Catholic Relief Services to aid victims of the famine resulting from the drought in Africa

"There is nothing worse than starving to death, except slowly starving to death," the message states

He notes that the 6 year-old drought has not only caused thousands of people to starve, but that it actually has destroyed land which may take as long as seven years to be rebuilt to produce food

Wycislo concludes his message by stating, "Let each of us eat less fast one day a week and give what we save to the starving people in Africa

Opinion

THE Post-Crescent

We'll go with Burns

Two economic experts presented diametrically opposite opinions on combatting inflation when they appeared before the Senate Budget Committee this week.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns told the committee that if the federal budget were cut by $10 billions the stock market would go up and interest rates would come down. He declared that increased government spending and accumulated federal deficits were responsible for our inflation. He said that the deficit of $3.5 billions for the fiscal year just ended was actually $21 billions when "off-budget" outlays and loans were included.

Then came Walter Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, with the kind of gobbledygook advice we have come to expect from academic economists. He said that "under these circumstances, to generate even more economic slack and unemployment by cutting the budget below $305 billion in exchange for negligible effects on the inflation rate is a bad economic and human bargain."

The terrible inflation this country is now enduring can be traced directly back to the economic policies of the Johnson Administration which were largely the work of Mr. Heller. As between the advice of Mr. Burns or Mr. Heller, the Senate committee should look at their respective track records and opt for the advice of the Federal Reserve Board chairman.

Public service pay

A study of the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance supports a general impression that the civil servant in Wisconsin, in both state and local governments, tends to be rewarded more generously in salary than does his counterpart in the rest of the country. It shows, for example, that general service Wisconsin state employes are paid at a level that is the highest in the country. That is substantially above this state's rank in economic capacity.

Earlier the Public Expenditure Survey, which is also involved in serious analysis of public expenditure and taxation trends, published studies on comparative compensation of public and private corporation employes in the state which showed that many civil servants are rewarded more generously than are wage and salary earners in private business. Fringe benefits tend to be notably higher in Milwaukee, it was found.

The WTA analysis concentrated on wages and salaries. It did not cover vacation or leave practices; retirement eligibility factors, size of retirement benefits and other elements making up payroll budgets. But it is probably a fair conjecture that the state is not far behind in such measures. Indeed, we may deduce from recent developments that the organized civil servants are aware of the comparatively liberal pay practices in public jobs here. They have appeared lately to concentrate their pressures on fringe pay gains as an alternative.

One of the regrettable weaknesses of the state capitol legislative process is that pension issues have usually been resolved with far less explanation and discussion than wage and salary standards despite the steadily rising ratio of retirement outlays to total state disbursements.

No more nerve gas

A couple of years ago the United States military was in a quandary — what to do with a lot of deadly gases, sealed in metal containers but quite out of date. Nobody wanted them and disposal was finally made deep in the Atlantic.

Maybe the memory of that dilemma prompted the House of Representatives last week to vote down new Pentagon demands for funds for nerve gas.

The military argued that the new kind they wanted to produce in some quantity was a "binary gas," that is, two relatively harmless chemical agents which could not be combined in their lethal state except through a firing device. Such a product would be easier to store and easier to dispose of once it became outmoded. The Pentagon didn't argue that the nerve gas was essential in fighting a war — in fact, the implication seemed to be that of course the United States would never fight a war in such a nasty fashion. But starting production would provide "a bargaining chip" to the United States in disarmament negotiations with the Soviet Union.

There is some validity to the argument. No one who wants to come out relatively even in a compromise enters the fray obviously weaker. But there are weapons and weapons. The Russians or the Chinese or anyone else can be deterred from attack just as well by the threat of some other part of American military arsenal as by nerve gas. The latter is also highly controversial as to its tactical use against an enemy. How can it be prevented from killing the good guys as well as the bad?

The House may have reacted to the $2 billion price tag the Pentagon conceded might be necessary for the new nerve gas. But all in all it was a wise decision.

Right to be a fool

Critics of the American Civil Liberties Union often charge that the organization is left-wing. But in San Francisco it is the first line of defense for a Nazi.

Sandra Silva is an active member of the National Socialist White Peoples Party. She is also employed as a clerk-typist by the San Francisco Police Department. A lot of people think she should be dismissed or forced to quit because her beliefs must conflict with her job.

But the Civil Service Commission ruled that her affiliation with the Nazi group did not interfere with her performance at her job, which has nothing to do with policy. Her strong opposition, for instance, to integration in the schools doesn't mean her spelling or typing is poor.

Captain George Eimil, personnel director for the Police Department, says "we want to get rid of her in the worst possible way, but it has to be done in a proper manner. We feel she dilutes the trust and confidence in the department because she antagonizes a lot of people we have to deal with." Presumably if Miss Silva's value to the department depended upon her dealing with the public, including blacks and Jews, there would be an obvious conflict.

But Mayor Joseph Alioto sided with the A.C.L.U. "In this country," he said, "you have the absolute right to be a damn fool."

It's a freedom that a lot of us take advantage of.

Transportation ignored by legislature

MADISON — Few Wisconsin Legislatures in the last 40 years have touched upon such a variety of issues as the present Senate and Assembly which have virtually concluded their labors for this term.

Responding in part to the temperament of Gov. Patrick Lucey, the legislative branch was also more inventive and responsive out of an awareness of the partisan division between the upper and lower houses and the desire to make credible records and the pressures of social and economic change.

Yet some topics were virtually ignored in defiance of their usual popularity. Notable among them is the issue of transportation and its financing.

"Transportation" in statehouse political terms over the decades has meant highway transportation. Generations of politicians built their careers with careful accommodation of the multitude of interests concerned with roads and highways. The Wisconsin rural economy, fixed to the highly perishable and enormous volumes of milk sent to market each day, required the politician to be concerned.

Concurrently, the rapid expansion of the state's industrial economy in more recent years required prudent urban office-seekers to be almost equally responsive to the demands of the factories which mostly were required to import their raw materials and later to rely upon efficient transport routes to send finished goods to market.

Such ingredients, combined with the obviously deep concern of the growing tourist industry in good roads, the consolidation of rural schools for more effective learning that could only be achieved with good roads to carry hundreds of thousands of children from their homes to the classrooms, among other forces, made roads an issue that the typical legislator could ignore only at his peril.

Until lately. The current legislature had more urgent representations about the exigency of the highway financial situation than most predecessors. But it showed no response. The state highway administration sent to the legislature documentary material couched in ever more anxious terms to prove the highway finance crisis. Gov. Lucey, responsive and eager to lead on most other issues, never settled on a reply to the distressed reports of his own highway department appointees.

Today the department is continuing with a modest construction effort that was managed only because the legislature permitted a bond issue to raise funds to match federal aid grants that would otherwise not have been paid out. Such manipulations cannot be relied upon in the future. The next legislature and the next administration will be required to decide whether the standards of highway service will be continued at the level to which users have been accustomed or be cut back.

Legislators, of course, and perhaps the governor as well, are worried that the electorate will resent a higher state highway tax schedule at a time of motor fuel price rises to levels never before experienced. Yet there is little showing of any real inclination to resist buying on that account. There is also ample proof on the record that the Wisconsin motor fuel tax schedule is modest as against rates accepted in most of the rest of the country.

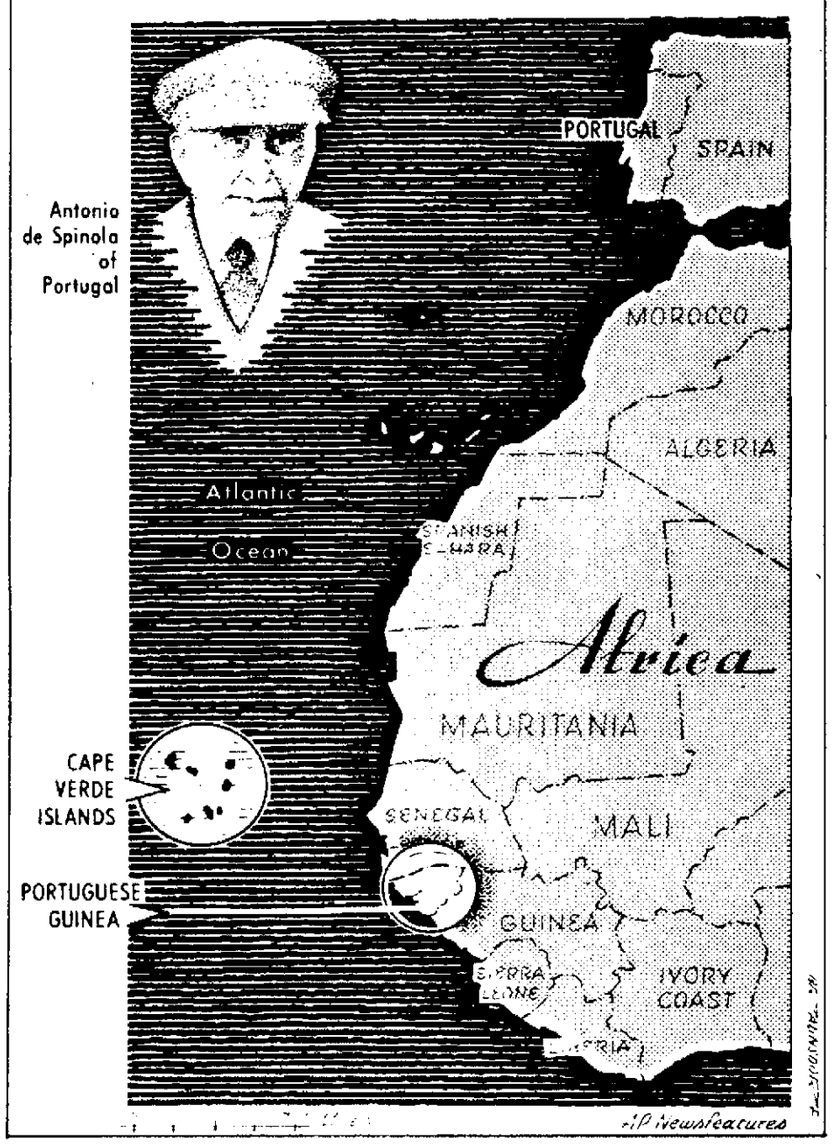

The taxation of the motor vehicle as property in Wisconsin is conspicuously low, as a score of studies have amply documented. That involves an issue quite distinct from the adequacy of the transportation budget.

The registration charge many decades earlier was intended to replace the municipal tax on autos as property — recognizing that a highly mobile form of property tended to evade the local tax assessor. But the result has been that the owners of other property are paying more than their share to subsidize the motor vehicle user.

AFRICAN TERRITORIES PROMISED FREEDOM

Portuguese President Antonio de Spinola says he is ready to start transferring power to Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea

Many of the 275,000 Cape Verde islanders not so sure they want independence

Cape Verde's future in doubt

By The Associated Press

In his recent pledge to start transferring power to Portugal's three territories on the African mainland, President Antonio de Spinola made no mention of plans for the Cape Verde Islands located off the west coast of the dark continent.

The island's 275,000 people, more of them mulattos than black or white, have showed uncertainty whether they want independence from Lisbon.

The African Party for the Independence of Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands, has claimed that it represents both Portuguese Guinea and the islands and has expressed the desire to unite them into one autonomous unit.

However, many of the islanders don't feel any close ties to the mainland territory 400 miles away.

Portuguese authorities ranked the people of Guinea at the bottom of the colonial ladder and gave most of the jobs in the territory requiring skill to Cape Verdeans. Most of the leaders of the independence movement are offspring of Cape Verdeans who had been sent to Guinea to work on the colonial administration staff.

There is a growing independence movement, however, among young Portuguese-educated lawyers, engineers and other professions who live on the island.

These young professional men have been making speeches favoring independence, but they have few links with the leadership of the African independence party.

The Cape Verde archipelago was uninhabited when the first Portuguese settlers landed in the 15th century. The black Africans who were brought there went as slaves from the various tribes of West Africa.

Portugal continues to run the Cape Verde islands through an administration in which most posts are held by Cape Verdeans. The military presence on the islands consists of fewer than 2,000 soldiers.

Pat Brown Jr. runs in California

Four years ago, a group of prominent California Democrats secretly telephoned former Gov. Edmund "Pat" Brown and asked him to run once again for his old office.

They had taken a public opinion poll which showed that Brown was more popular than any other possible Democratic contender and running neck-and-neck with incumbent Gov. Ronald Reagan. They had also quietly collected pledges for a half-million dollar initial campaign kitty.

Brown was greatly tempted. But his wife was horrified. "You can't interfere with your son's career," she said firmly.

Edmund "Jerry" Brown, Jr., was then a candidate for secretary of state, a relatively unimportant office he meant to transform into a springboard toward bigger things.

So Pop declined to run. And Brown, Jr., won his race by a huge margin, partly because many voters thought he was his father making a comeback after his 1966 defeat by Reagan.

Today Jerry Brown, 35, is the Democratic nominee for governor and appears to be comfortably leading his GOP rival, Controller Houston Flournoy. By now, most voters here know young Brown is not the former two-term governor, who nearly sidetracked Richard Nixon on the way to the Presidency by defeating him in the 1962 gubernatorial race.

Proud Poppa

The elder Brown is enjoying it all immensely. He stays in the background to allow his son to develop his own independent image. But he is active in raising money, planning strategy and bringing around the older pros, who still tend to remember "Baby" Brown as a kid with a lot to learn.

At 69, Brown, Sr., is leaner than he was as governor and just as vigorous. His firm is thriving. He is writing a book about politics and is looking forward to visiting his son in the governor's mansion, where he has not set foot for eight years.

Brown, Jr., did not originally intend to follow his father into politics. He studied to become a Jesuit priest and then went to Yale Law School. But he became involved in Sen. Eugene McCarthy's presidential campaign and that did it. He was hooked.

Jerry Brown is a liberal, like his father. In personality, however, the two men are vastly different. Brown, Sr., is amiable and outgoing, given to uninhibited remarks that were refreshing for their candor but sometimes got him in trouble. "I was always popping off about something and regretting it later," he chuckles. "Jerry doesn't do that. He plans ahead of time. He's much more precise."

Most of the objections raised about Brown, Jr., during the primary were personal ones. No one has seriously questioned his intellect nor his judgment. But some feel that he is too single-minded in his ambition to be governor, too reserved and controlled.

Those qualities, however, may turn out to be political assets. He is so serious and intense that one forgets how young he is. He projects an aura of competence, which is more important than getting a lot of laughs.

Tried and true gambit

Jerry Brown is running on the theme that eight years of Republican rule in the statehouse is enough, which is roughly the same pitch Reagan used successfully against his father. Without mentioning Watergate, he is counting on the anti-Republican disenchantment it has generated.

"We need a new tone, a new philosophy and a new political will to solve the problems of California," he says.

He supported the sweeping campaign reforms approved here recently by the voters, in the face of massive union opposition. He stresses consumer issues and plumps for better education. He points out that among Reagan's top 100 appointments there is only one woman, no black person and one union official; and he promises to change that. He advocates a strong state government, the opposite of the Reagan rhetoric of limited government. He wants to spend money for the social good and the quality of life, which is the area conservatives see as best to cut back in the fight against inflation.

And he mocks Reagan's desire to spend millions for a new governor's mansion. "I happen to know that old mansion is fine," he says with a smile. "I lived there once."

Mobile home owners have their complaints

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (AP) — Mobile homes are involved in more complaints for their number than houses or cars, says Mike Hanson, director of trade practices with British Columbia Consumer Services. He told the Western Mobile Home Dealers' Association that most of the complaints involve construction of homes not set properly on their footings.

Food for nation's pets has officials concerned

By SUSAN MERRILL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The food for the nation's 70 million cats and dogs is of growing concern to some government officials who are are looking for ways to avoid a new round of meat shortages and higher food prices

"Pet food companies have been stealing our precious cattle feed by outbidding the farmers and driving the price of feed grain up," says George Allen, economist for the U S Department of Agriculture in Washington, D C

"We pay at least five cents more a pound for our meat because of the pet food industry and as much as 10 cents a pound in a tight grain market "

Allen who told a reporter that he spoke only for himself, later denied making the comments and said he had refused to make estimates on costs added by pet food demand

Agriculture Secretary Earl L Butz, however, has contended that those who would increase world food supplies by reducing Americans' consumption "could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent, which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the world "

Butz, in a speech Friday in Indianapolis, reiterated that statement and his original disclaimer when he first raised the controversial point "I do not advocate doing away with dogs and cats," he said

Pet food industry spokesmen say the industry brings the price of human food down by providing the farmer and meat processor with a profitable outlet for meat by-products

"A rather large percentage of meat is not useable as human food and is left as by-product," says Dwaine Ekedahl, executive chairman of the Pet Food Institute in Washington, D C

"As a result of the production of pet foods, food for human consumption is available at a lower cost because the farmer and processor have an economic outlet for their by-products "

Impartial observers say the truth normally lies somewhere in between, but in the present tight grain situation, government officials may be more on target

The Pet Food Institute, a trade association, estimates that cats and dogs will consume 4 2 million tons of commercially prepared pet food in 1974 The principal ingredients are roughly two million tons of corn feed grain, one million tons of meat by-products and 260,000 tons of soybean meal And experts predict an annual 8 per cent growth in pet food consumption for the next several yeas

Although the corn used by pet food companies is only 1 2 per cent of this year's total expected corn feed production, it is important to government officials when viewed against the poor yield of weather beaten grain crops in the 1974-75 season USDA officials say the corn yield will be 12 per cent below last year's already depleted levels and soybeans are expected to fall short by 16 per cent

Legislators have until Sunday to call veto session

MADISON, Wis (AP) — Legislators have until Sunday to set a date for a special session to consider vetoes by Democratic Gov Patrick J Lucey, a Republican lawmaker said Friday

Rep Kenyon Giese of Sauk City said that, under a resolution adopted at the beginning of the 1973-74 session, a date for a veto session must be called within 10 days after Lucey's last bill signing

Lucey signed a bill Aug 15, banning studded tires in 1975

The joint Joint Committee on Legislative Organization, which determines when a veto session is to be held, has been unable to agree on a date

"The key issue," Geiese said, "is whether the legislative branch is going to knuckle under to the political dicates of the executive branch "

Giese said Lucey has fully or partially vetoed 31 bills

"The citizens' confidence is their elected officials will erode further" unless a session is called before the August deadline Giese said

Floods in Asia begin to recede

By The Associated Press

Asian countries lashed by some of the worst flooding in memory grappled with the damage Friday as muddy monsoon waters receded

The flooding in India, Bangladesh, Burma and the Philippines left over 1,800 dead, according to official figures Millions were homeless, crops were ruined and property damage was estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars

The worst flooding occurred in Bangladesh and India where the high waters began a month ago Flood waters have receded in all 17 affected districts in Bangladesh but as the submerged houses became visible again the magnitude of the miseries left behind was clear

The biggest problems are shelter, subsistence, sanitation and rehabilitation for the one million affected people Many found their small huts in shambles and the ponds that provided their drinking water contaminated

The official death toll is 1,714, mostly from disease, in Bangladesh, but some unofficial counts run as high as 3,000

Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman has ordered Bangladesh on a war footing to deal with relief operations

The Agriculture Ministry is seeking new rice seed to distribute to farmers whose plantings were washed away by floodwaters Official estimates say more than a million tons of extra food grains will be needed from abroad to make up for damage to the rice crop

In eastern Bihar State, the worst-hit area in India, farmers began rice planting in an effort to salvage winter crops Officials reported the floodwaters destroyed more than $73 million worth of summer food grains in the state, India's poorest

The flooding in Burma was the worst in a century, leaving 18 persons dead, two million homeless and property damage of more than $10 million, according to official figures Floodwaters covered about 11 per cent of the country

The Philippine government reported the worst flooding in two years to hit the central Luzon area, 50 miles north of Manila, took 80 lives President Ferdinand E Marcos distributed relief goods and ordered government aid to the farmers

Judge rules on nonstrike contract clauses, benefits

MADISON, Wis (AP) — Union members who violate nonstrike contract clauses are not entitled to unemployment benefits, Judge Richard W Bardwell of Circuit Court ruled Friday

Bardwell's decision involves members of the Service and Hospital Employes International Union, AFL-CIO, who walked off their jobs at a nursing home in Greenfield in 1972

More than 100 of them were fired, and about 40 were subsequently rehired

Discharged workers applied for unemployment compensation and received it

The state Industry, Labor and Human Relations Department reversed the determination

Bardwell said the agency is correct because the "union's promise not to strike was a basic clause of the contract" which was "negotiated particularly because of the potential for harm of a strike at a nursing home "

Fond du Lac County driver dies in crash

By The Associated Press

A car-truck crash on a Fond du Lac County road raised Wisconsin's 1974 traffic fatality toll to 542 Friday compared with 704 on the same date a year ago

Alvin J Cook, 23, of Ripon was fatally injured when his car collided with a truck which authorities said had swerved to avoid some children on bicycles

Middle child can be link

Dear Ann Landers I felt sorry for the teen-age boy who signed his letter "The Kid In The Middle " We called our middle child "The Magic Link "

After having completed his elementary and secondary school as a straight A student (he had to work harder than the others), our middle child graduated with a higher grade average than his older brother (who was a National Merit Scholar Finalist) and his younger sister, who graduated with a B plus

I wish all kids in the middle could think of themselves as "The Magic Link," learning from an older sibling and teaching the younger one, rather than suffering from comparisons on both sides

The middle spot can be an advantageous one if viewed in proper perspective Please cheer up those who think it's a curse by printing this letter —A Witness

Dear Wit On behalf of those who consider being trapped in the middle a curse, I thank you for a cheerful little earful

Dear Ann Landers This morning you printed a letter from an 18-year old male college freshman whose high standards created problems because he was opposed to premarital sex That letter could have been written by our own son five years ago Everything fit—even the "four lovely sisters "

The boy is now engaged in "a meaningful relationship" with a girl His rationale is that the divorce rate is so high, it is better to live together first and see if you are suited for one another

His dad and I are faced with the dilemma of keeping his life-style a secret from his sisters or denouncing him to them Neither choice is a good one My husband insists the less said the better I'm sure the girls suspect something is going on Isn't our silence tantamount to approval?—Disillusioned Mother

Dear Mother I agree with your husband I also believe your daughters are well aware of your feelings and they appreciate your silence

While you don't mention your son's age, I assume he is old enough to know how he wants to live I also assume that you and yomr husband are not underwriting a life-style you feel is immoral

Strictly for the record Couples who lived together as a "test-pattern" are faring no better after marriage In fact, the divorce rate among that group is slightly higher than among those who did not

Dear Ann Landerg My husband wants me to go to a hospital for the mentally ill I think he is the sick one We have been married for six years and have two children For the past three past we have fought like catsand dogs There are times when I wish I could scream, but I'm afraid if I do he'll put me away

Twice I have tried to leave, but when he sees I am serious he changes his mind and says he doosn't want me to go I can't stand much more of his yelling at me, finding fault with everything I do and telling me I'm crazy

If I stay with him I will go out of my head for sure Please advise me, Ann —Ready For The Booby Hatch

Dear Friend I can't solve a six-year-old problem in one letter or two inches of newspaper space You need continuing help

I suggest that you and your husband attend a meeting of Recovery, Inc If he won t go — go alone Help is as close as your phone book

Joke based on sound to try out at a party

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's fun-project is a stunt to spring at a party If it is performed correctly, the effect is funny

Locate a place in the house

A "long" walk

where the stunt will be most effective

It will be necessary for the guests to be assembled where they can see what happens only as the stunt reaches its climax A suitable location would be a short hallway connecting the living room with the dining room, for example We will assume your guests are in the living room

You stand in the hall where the guests cannot see you and as shown in Figure 1, start marking time by stomping your feet to produce the sound of footsteps The effect to convey to the guests is that of someone approaching the living room along a very long hall Actually of course, you are only marking time

Keep up the footsteps for several seconds making them louder and louder as the time approaches for you to enter the living room

Suddenly, burst into the living room (Figure 2) as if you had just come from a block-long walk

If done with skill, this can be a riot of fun

Tomorrow Lots more good fun for every boy and girl!

Theater review

Bright and bouncy

BY DAVID F. WAGNER
Post Crescent arts editor

In the past decade, one of the best and most difficult musicals written is "Cabaret," a powerful, sometimes tender, sometimes bordering on vulgar, depiction of Germany shortly before Hitler came to power

It won almost every award a musical can get and its movie version was widely acclaimed It is the final production of Attic Theatre's 25th season and among the toughest challenges the amateur group has encountered Happily, it is done beautifully

"Cabaret" is one of those rare musicals in which the music fits into the play realistically The setting is the Kit Kat Klub, a microcosm of the decadence which played a large part of Hitler's ability to establish the Third Reich All production numbers in the musical take place at the club, except for one reprise of "Tomorrow Belongs to Me," done as a group sing in a fruit shop So believability is rarely stretched

I enjoyed the movie version more than the play, due mostly to the tremendous photography and editing There is no way a stage production can match good dramatic filming For example, the "Tomorrow Belongs to Me" numbers in the play are done in such a way that the audience gets the point that the tomorrow referred to is the Third Reich and the "me" the Nazis In the movie, the impact was far greater Up to the point the song appeared, there was only passing mention about what Germany would soon experience The song is introduced in an outdoor party scene, with a cherub-faced boy of about 14, with a beautiful tenor voice, singing the opening verse alone The camera is zoomed in extremely tight Ever so gradually, the sweet innocence of the lad's presentation evolves into more emphatic enunciation of the chorus, with the camera slowly panning back, revealing the Nazi youth uniform the boy is wearing It was done as effectively as any single scene I have witnessed

While Attic's version, obviously, cannot hope for such impact, it must be admitted that director Joe Hopfensperger, with tremendous technical assistance, has drawn more out of his cast than anyone reasonably would expect The key is the strong nucleus of talent in the seven major roles

First, the roles of Master of Ceremonies and Sally Bowles are cruelly tough — especially the M C Tom Stadler is an exteremely effective M C , a role made tougher by public recollection of the masterful job Joel Grey did in the movie Stadler is visually perfect and his personality on stage projects strongly enough to capture the wickedness of the surface character, yet is tempered enough to avoid overwhelming the fact the M C really is a sincere guy

Monica McKenny as Sally Bowles is enthusiastic and energetic, sings well and overcomes the image of Liza Minnelli as Sally, despite being a visual opposite She is a pretty woman who handles her role well, but I noticed the character is not as dominant in the play as in the film

It seems a shame to pass over other super characterizations quickly, but there were five which could be lumped under the general classification of excellent

Marjorie Moore Anania as Fraulein Schneider and Curtis Brown as her Jewish romantic interest, Herr Schultz, played opposite each other very effectively Moore is a beautiful singer and Brown can't sing at all, but the combination of her excellent voice and his well-done talking lyrics worked

Lila Anderson did beautifully as the woman of easy access, Fraulein Kost, and Tom Glinski as the young Nazi, Ernst Ludwig, and Frank Rippl as Sally's American boyfriend, Clifford Bradshaw, are effective

The rest of the large cast, too numerous to mention, were cast well

Special praise has to go to set designer Les Christoffel, particularly for the remarkable Kit Kat Klub set, and to costume coordinator Mary Lou Holmes

The orchestra, which was hidden backstage, was good

The play runs a trifle longer than it should, but pace problems have a way of correcting themselves during the course of a run

The play will be seen nightly except Monday through Aug 31 Curtain is at 8 15 p m each day, with Sunday opening an hour earlier

To fly again

Producer-director Robert Wise, left, and actor George C Scott look over a 25 foot replica of the ill fated dirigible Hindenburg which will be used in the new Universal Studios film, The Hindenburg The model will be used with painted backgrounds for exterior shots (AP wirephoto)

Clogged Eustachian tube impairs hearing

Dear Dr Thosteson Please explain the relation between hearing and the Eustachian tubes

Will hearing be impaired if the tube is plugged or stopped up? If this does exist, is there any treatment?

Last year I made a plane trip, and off and on ever since my ears have been "popping" when I swallow Is this caused by a plugged canal? — J F M

The Eustachian tubes are tiny ducts, one for each ear The tubes lead from the middle ear to the upper part of the throat

To hear well, your ear drum has to vibrate in accordance with the sound waves reaching it To vibrate freely the pressure must be approximately equal on each side of the drum And that's what the Eustachian tubes are for — to permit a gradual flow of air in or out, to the middle ear Thus you don't have pressure building up on only one side of the ear drum such unbalanced pressure would put tension on the drum and prevent proper vibration

Stoppage of the tubes may not, of course, be complete But if the tubes are partially closed, that can impair hearing Probably the most frequent cause of such a condition is inflammation of the tissues Indeed, infection can result in scar tissue which permanently leaves the opening in the tube somewhat smaller, or even closed off

Whether closing of the tubes will respond to treatment depends on the individual case and the only counsel I can offer is that you consult an ear nose throat specialist

I would doubt that your plane trip caused your trouble but it may have brought it to your attention There is relatively little trouble if you are riding in a plane with a pressurized cabin, since pressure is kept reasonably constant regardless of the altitude of the plane There can be some difference in pressure as the plane rises or descends (usually the latter) and if Eustachian tubes are not open this can cause a temporary deafness which corrects itself as, gradually air seeps through to equalize pressure in your ears

With the older, nonpressurized cabins, the period of unbalanced pressure could in fact be quite painful for a time

About your ears 'popping" when you swallow — the act of swallowing or yawning or even chewing involves some movement of the tissues surrounding the tubes, particularly the entrance to the tubes and is usually helpful in allowing a bit of air through the tubes This, of course, is helpful

Keep track of bidding to locate missing cards

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's important to remember that your opponents are normal human beings and that they are trying to help each other You can usually rely on their bids to tell you where the high cards are

2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead — ◇ A

Suppose you pay no attention to the bidding The opponents begin by taking two diamond tricks You ruff the third diamond with the ace of trumps draw three rounds of trumps and eventually take the normal club finesse

This is fatal Dummy's queen of clubs loses to the king West must eventually get a club trick and the contract is one in the soup

"Tough luck," you remark to your partner And you continue with the sage observation that you can't win all the finesses

THINK OF OVERCALL

Now think of East's overcall of one diamond If East had no strength other than the K-J of diamonds would he bid one diamond?

Surely a sensible East must have the king of clubs

Just as surely, you must not take the club finesse You may take the ace of clubs and then lead a low club in the hope that East must play the king Or you may begin the clubs by leading a low club from the dummy This may trap East into playing the king even if he has more than two clubs (If East plays low, you intend to play the ace of clubs next)

A third line of play is to draw trumps and cash three hearts Then lead a low club from the South hand and play low from the dummy East may be obliged to win the trick, and then he will be unable to make a safe return lead If West wins the first club trick declarer must go up with dummy's ace of clubs on the next trick to make the contract

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold S A K J 6 3 H K J 10 D-¾ 5 C-9 4 2 What do you say?

ANSWER Bid one spade You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton This is enough for an opening bid when you have a good rebiddable major suit

Bad weather slows birds

Stormy weather, plus the inexperience of the birds, led to a poor showing by pigeons owned by members of the Valley Flying Club in their first outing of the young bird season Aug. 4 However, speeds picked up in races on Aug. 11 and 18

The first three races of the new season were flown by birds hatched in March and April All races originated in Sparta, Wis , approximately 120 airline miles from the Fox Cities

Birds were released at 8 a m. Aug. 4 at Sparta and were expected to be flocking back to their roosts by 10 30 a m , according to a club spokesman However, because of stormy weather and because they undoubtedly were forced down by rain, the pigeons didn't get home until as late as 2 p.m that day. Their youthfulness and inexperience in racing may have contributed to their tardiness, the spokesman added Winds were northwesterly

That first race saw 408 birds from 28 lofts in competition. Bird owners and the speeds of their pigeons were: James Sewall, Menasha, 899 yards per minute; James Schell, Kaukauna, 849 and 830; Stan Verstegen, Little Chute, 726, Robert Bernard, Kaukauna, 720, David Laux, Menasha, 675; Robert Natrop, Kaukauna, 634; K and K loft, Kaukauna, 632, and Al Jansen, Little Chute, 608 and 592

The pigeons were released at 10 a.m Aug. 11 at Sparta. The weather was clear and winds were westerly These conditions, plus a better knowledge of the route after the race a week earlier, led to better speeds and earlier loft check-in times. There were 312 birds from 26 lofts in the race

Winners were James Hanamann, Menasha, 1,337; Bernard Coppus, Kaukauna, 1,327, Emory Mollen, Little Chute, 1,326, Howard Fritsch, Menasha, 1,322; Ed Walker, Kaukauna, 1,319; Al Jansen, Little Chute, 1,318; Robert Natrop, Kaukauna, 1,317, Mollen, 1,313; and K and K loft, Kaukauna, 1,311.

The weather was clear and winds were northwesterly when 444 birds from 33 lofts were released at 8 a.m. last Sunday in Sparta

BY ROGER PITT
Post Crescent staff writer

The Appleton Foxes put on one of their patented exhibitions in steam rolling slumping Waterloo 7-1 Friday night and clinching the Midwest League's Northern Division second half championship.

Great pitching, timely hitting and magician-like play in the field were the ingredients the rampaging Foxes used to inflate their record to 42-17 for the second half, a winning percentage of .712.

Appleton clinched the title as Cedar Rapids defeated Wisconsin Rapids 6-1 in the second game of a doubleheader after the Twins logged a 4-3 win in the opener.

"When you think you can win, it makes it a lot easier," a relaxed and subdued Gordy Lund said following his team's victory.

The win was the fourth straight for the Foxes and 19th in 23 games in August. Lund has pieced together a fine working machine after a horrendous 6-17 start.

Slumping Waterloo, which hasn't been much of a threat since the Foxes swept a three-game series in early August, suffered their 12th loss in their last 17 games. Starting that skid was an 18-inning victory by Appleton.

Waterloo's Steve Blomberg, a collegiate star at Lawrence, ledoff the first with a looping single to left. Blomberg stole second and third and scored the Royals only run when Mike Dlugach's throw to third was wide and went into left. That was the only bad defensive play of the night for the Foxes.

Meanwhile, Tom King — who posted his ninth straight win — moved into a tie with Rich Gossage for the best winning percentage by an Appleton pitcher. Gossage was 18-2 in 1971. King, a tall southpaw from Hamlet, Ind., is 9-1.

Jim Geddes, making a comeback from a sore arm, was overpowering in two innings of relief. He had a super fast ball and tremendous curve.

Appleton quickly erased Waterloo's 1-0 lead with a pair of runs in its half of the first. Clyde Jeter hit a hard smash off starting pitcher Gary Williams and beat the throw to first for a single. With one out, Paul Kurpiel lined a triple to right-center to score Jeter. After Kevin Bell, making his first start since Aug. 13, popped out, Ed Wheeler walked and Mike Dlugach, also drawing his first starting assignment in about a week, singled for the go-ahead run.

The Foxes put the game away in the third with a three-run rally. Kurpiel walked with one out and Bell lashed a liner to left-center to bring him home on a double. Wheeler singled to right to score Bell and chase Williams. Reliever Alex Gorgie allowed a single to Dlugach to put two runners in scoring position and Mike Wolf flew deep to left to plate Wheeler.

Singles by King, Jeter, Kurpiel and Weeler produced two more runs in the fourth.

King was the master as he retired 20 straight Royals after Blomberg scored on the error. Karel de Leeuw ended the string with a grounder to Bell's left which was barely missed.

Geddes came on in the eighth and struck out four of seven batters he faced. Bob Tuttle beat out an infield hit to open the ninth.

Dlugach, who was rested because of feeling tired, returned to the lineup with a 3-for-4 night. Wheeler, who has been taking extra batting in attempt to shake a slump, also responded with a 2-for-3 night.

"I'll get ano ther start," King said. "My curve was staying low and my fastball was working good." He wasn't aware that he had matched Gossage's winning percentage.

Geddes has been happy with his progress. "That's the first good curve I've thrown all year," he said, of a pitch to end the game.

Dlugach credited Mike Wolf with a tip for his hitting. "Wolf told me to spread my feet a little," he said. "I was having trouble planting my back foot. You know it's a lot of games and you feel it."

Wheeler said, "I was hitting everyday and making good contact in batting practice. But, I'd get in the game and wasn't making good contact . . . all I could do is keep swinging."

Lund pointed to outstanding defensive plays by Wolf (second), Eric Thomas (shortstop), Bell (third) and Wheeler as being instrumental Friday.

"Wolf has helped us a lot," Lund said. "He's given us some great defense and he's beginning to hit. This was one of King's better outings. He had a similar game near the end of the first half against Waterloo."

The Foxes play Waterloo in a 7:30 p.m. game today and a 2 p.m. game Sunday.

GREEN BAY — In one way, pre-season victories are absolutely worthless. You couldn't trade six of them for just one in the regular season.

Yet in other ways, they can be of immense intangible value. Especially for a young team that is accustomed to defeat more than victory, the exhibition games can act as confidence builders. Success in the pre-season can be a panacea for a losing attitude.

That is partly why tonight's Bishop's Charities contest between the Green Bay Packers and Denver Broncos has more appeal than the typical pre-season game.

To begin with, it will be the first Lambeau Field invasion for the Broncos, and that is always a treat for the local fans. And secondly, the Packers and Broncos are both young clubs with ambitious and lofty hopes for the '74 season. Both need to establish a winning tradition, or at least maintain one that's in its infancy.

John Ralston, Denver coach, has already declared that his veterans will play a good share of the game and they'll play to win. Packer Coach Dan Devine is committed to a timetable for his vets, but he admits in the heat of battle there will be a temptation to ignore it.

The Packers have won the last five times they took the field — including last season's finale and a game-type scrimmage with Chicago — and Devine would like to see the streak increased.

"You always want to keep it going within the framework of what you're trying to do in the pre-season," Devine said. "A winning attitude is very, very important.

"But by the same token, we still have a lot of people we want to look at and a lot of people we want to give experience to. In the pre-season games, you're not always going to be playing the best lineup to win. But it's something you've got to force yourself to do.

"I have a timetable in my mind that I'm pretty likely to stick to no matter what the score is."

With the exception of a half-dozen or so players, the Packers' 3-0 exhibition record has been accomplished largely by rookies. Most of the veterans have not played since last December, when the Packers concluded a disappointing 5-7-2 season.

Yet Devine refuses to separate his team into rookies and veterans. In reference to the entire squad, he says, "I think we've got a winning attitude."

Denver is 2-1 in the pre-season. The Broncos beat Minnesota, 27-21, and San Francisco, 10-3, after losing their opener to the New York Jets 41-19.

However, none of the veterans who were responsible for last year's 7-5-2 record, the first winning season in the 14-year history of the Denver franchise, have participated in the three games. Instead, they honored the National Football League players' strike.

Tonight's game will also be the first test for at least three players, who are coming off serious injuries. Guard Gale Gillingham and defensive tackle Mike McCoy both had off-season knee surgery, while cornerback Willie Buchanon is coming back from a leg fracture."

"Gilly" and McCoy both claim they are prepared to go full tilt. Buchanon says he will go all out as long as he can, but that he still has occasional soreness in the leg.

The consensus among the veterans is that they are anxious for their first combat.

"There's more anticipation and a little more nervousness associated with it because it is the first one," tackle Malcolm Snider said.

"We're ready to go to work. It seems to me we have a good attitude and I'm anxious to see if it pays off."

McCoy said, "We're undefeated and we'd like to stay that way. We need to get in hitting shape and prepare for the first game against Minnesota . . . That's the one that counts — the opener."

"Some guys might be in pretty good running condition and now we have to get into contact condition," safety Jim Hill explained. "But once we get in that first hit, we'll settle down and concentrate on our assignments. That's what we must do, is give our full concentration and read our keys, know our rules and assignments."

Royals post 8-4 win over Brews

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Doubles by Cookie Rojas and Vada Pinson sparked a four-run outburst in the second inning and the Kansas City Royals went on to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-4 in the first game of their Friday twi-night doubleheader.

Steve Busby, 19-10, got the victory, with relief help from Steve Mingori in the seventh inning.

Tony Solaita started off the Royals second inning with a single and scored on Rojas' double Three more runs scored on a single by George Brett, a forceout and Pinson's double, which chased Brewer starter Bill Champion, 8-3.

Solaita's two-run homer, his sixth of the year, made it 6-0 in the third.

Darrell Porter's run-scoring single in the fourth accounted for the Brewers' first run, but Hal McRae's RBI single in the sixth made it 7-1.

Mingori relieved Busby after the Brewers scored three times in the seventh on singles by Tim Johnson and Pedro Garcia, a double by Don Money, a sacrifice fly by Mike Hegan and a single by John Briggs.

Kansas City made it 8-4 in the eighth when Jim Wohlford walked, stole second and went to third on a wild throw, then scored on the front half of a double steal.

The second game went into extra innings with the score 0-0.

Tiant wins No. 20

BOSTON (AP) — Luis Tiant became the major league's first 20-game winner with his 20th complete game of the season Friday night as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Oakland A's 3-0.

Tiant, who has lost eight, scattered six hits, struck out six and walked two in posting his sixth shutout of the season.

Cheered on by a packed standing room crowd of 35,866, the Red Sox charged to their sixth victory in the last seven games.

It marked Boston's eighth victory in 10 games against Oakland this season.

The Red Sox jumped in front when leadoff man Tommy Harper drilled Vida Blue's third pitch of the game high into the left field screen for his fifth homer. It was Boston's first home run since Aug. 9.

Williams' hit decisive

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Williams cracked a three-run homer on a 3-0 pitch to cap a four-run sixth inning Baltimore rally and power the Orioles to a 4-1 decision over the Minnesota Twins Friday night.

Williams' 10th homer of the season came after Don Baylor tied the score 1-1 with a two-out single and stole two bases before a walk to Brooks Robinson.

Dave McNally settled down after a ragged second inning and pitched a six-hitter while running his record to 12-9. He has won four of his last five decisions.

The Twins loaded the bases with none out in the second and Bob Darwin, who opened with a single, scored on Danny Thommson's force play. McNally reloaded the bases with his second walk of the inning, but Steve Brye grounded into a double play.

Dave Goltz, 6-7, was saddled with the loss.

Yankees romp

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy White homered, drove in four runs and scored twice Friday night, leading the New York Yankees to a 10-4 rout over the California Angels.

White, inserted into the starting lineup in left field when Lou Piniella came down with a sore throat before the game, tripled in the first inning and scored New York's first run on Bobby Murcer's infield out.

Santo, Kaat star

CHICAGO (AP) — Designated hitter Ron Santo singled home one run and scored another and Jim Kaat stopped the Cleveland Indians on seven hits Friday night, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 2-1 victory that snapped a five-game losing streak.

The loss was the 10th in the last 14 games for the Indians, who dropped 7½ games behind the Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

Dierker hurls 3-hitter

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran Larry Dierker fired a three-hitter and Roger Metzger doubled and scored on Bob Watson's two-out single in the sixth inning to carry the Houston Astros to a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Dierker, 8-8, outdueled Philadelphia starter Dick Ruthven, 6-10, who gave up three hits in the seven innings he worked.

With one out in the sixth, Metzger belted his double over the head of Phils left fielder Jay Johnstone. One out later, Watson stroked a single up the middle and Metzger raced home with the game's only run.

Rangers beat Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Steve Hargan fired a four-hitter and his Texas teammates ripped Joe Coleman for four runs in the third inning, giving the Rangers a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Friday night.

The Rangers' big third inning began with a walk to Joe Lovitto, who came home on a triple by Jim Sundberg. Dave Nelson doubled in a run, Cesar Tovar singled, Jeff Burroughs hit a sacrifice fly and Mike Hargrove singled in another run.

After Jim Spencer singled in thefourth run of the inning, Woodie Fryman replaced Coleman, 10-12.

A leadoff single by Ben Oglivie in the second was Detroit's only hit off Hargan, 10-8, until Al Kaline opened the seventh with a single. Jim Nettles added a two-run homer in the inning for the Tigers' runs.

Key Bluejays

1974 Jays Corrigan's best?

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent staff writer

MENASHA — Will football 1974 be the year of the Bluejay in the Fox Valley Association?

Menasha High School Coach Jim Corrigan isn't saying so but concedes that this should be the best team he's had in his tenure here, covering five previous seasons.

But, he adds, last year's club was his best, too.

The Jays, in '73, ended a 19-game losing string with an opening victory over Beaver Dam, beat Neenah for the first time in a decade, played a 12-12 tie with St. Mary and closed with a 3-5-1 record.

From that group, Corrigan and his associates have 22 returning lettermen, including a good chunk of the offensive unit.

"Offensively, the interior of our line should be strong," Corrigan explained. Returning are 220-pound Kurt VandenBoogaard, who, the coach believes can be one of the best centers in the league, and Bob Gilbert and Bob Pruchnofski, a pair of 200-pound, good blocking guards.

Depth in the backfield is another area which is pleasing to the Bluejay coach. He has good runners in Pete Sturn, named the most valuable back as a sophomore last year, Bob Burroughs and Jim Smolinski. Sprinters Phil Roberts and Dave Straw and fullback Jeff Smith, all juniors, form the second unit. As a sophomore, Roberts was named the Jays' top trackman.

Corrigan declared that Rod Fredrickson is as good a passing quarterback as Menasha has had in a long time, and added that junior Rick Henke probably could be a starter on most teams in the league.

"Both Fredrickson and Henke have experience with out offense, which is one of our biggest pluses," the coach asserted.

The Bluejay mentor brought out the double slot offense a year ago and will stick with it. The Menashans put the ball in the air often and the coach hinted they may do more throwing this fall.

On the receiving end will be basketball star Marshall Richards, who has been shifted to wide receiver, lettermen Keith Dachelet and Mike Langenhuizen and Don Kellett, who usually finishes first among the juniors in the gruelling wind sprints. John Johnston, a reserve quarterback last year, also will get a trial at end.

The offensive tackles are question marks because of the lack of experience. Leading candidates include juniors Gary Widner and Mike Lehrer and seniors Bill Draeger, Tim Harrman and Rick Jacob. They range from Jacob's 175 to Draeger's 230 pounds.

"Depth in the defensive backfield is shallow," Corrigan noted. "We've got some good people in Bill Kolasinski, Richards and Burroughs but there is little depth behind them." Fredrickson isn't slated to play defense this season.

Corrigan pointed out that elsewhere on the defensive side, linebacking should be fair, there is good depth at end, and like the offense, the tackles are an unknown commodity

Linebacking candidates are headed by Smith, Gilbert and letterman Mark Zimmer. Ends include letterman Jeff Spielbauer, Kellett, Dennis Bodway and Dan Heid.

Norb Lauer, defensive end regular in 1973, has been shifted to nose guard.

Tackle possibilities include Widner, Heid, VandenBoogaard, Pruchhofski, Lehrer and Shane Brooks.

"At the start, probably six boys will have to go both ways but by the middle of the season we hope there will be less," the former Ripon College star declared.

He added that the boys showed up in better condition than in the past and he looks for leadership from among the 25 seniors, one of the largest fourth-year groups in a long time.

The squad consists of 91 candidates with 30 juniors and the rest sophomores, none of whom is expected to break into the varsity lineup.

The Jays debut against Two Rivers in their non-conference game and duel defending champion Appleton West in their league opener. They close against Kaukauna.

Corrigan rates the two along with Oshkosh North as the leading contenders. "We hope to improve and move up in the middle," he commented

Assisting are Al Johnson, Dave Rudolph, Tim Olson and Jim Scandin, all back from last year. The fact that the entire staff, in addition to the team, has a year's experience in the Corrigan offense is considered a big asset.

Bears deal Earl Thomas

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League acquired wide receiver Earl Thomas from the Chicago Bears Friday in exchange for veteran center Wayne Mulligan, running back Cliff McClain and an undisclosed draft choice.

Thomas, 25, a 6-foot-2, 200pound veteran beginning his fourth NFL season, has led the Bears in receiving for the past two years.

As a wide receiver last year, Thomas caught 24 passes for 344 yards and four touchdowns for Chicago As a tight end in 1972, Thomas caught 20 passes for 365 yards and two touchdowns.

He was the Bears' sixthround draft choice in 1971 when he graduated from the University of Houston.

Mulligan, 27 and a five-year NFL veteran, has been in the starting St. Louis lineup since 1970. The 6-foot-3, 250 pounder started in 13 games last year before missing the final contest with a broken arm.

McClain, 26, had signed as a free agent with the Cardinals in May after playing out his option with the New York Jets.

As a reserve with the Jets for four seasons, McClain gained a total of 445 yards on the ground in 79 carries for a 5.6 yard average.

Steelers' Reavis arrested

PITTSBURGH (AP) — David Reavis, trying out in the Pittsburgh Steelers' camp as a lineman, was charged Thursday with attempting to sell 25,000 amphetamine pills to an undercover federal narcotics agent.

Reavis, 24, a candidate for the Steelers team for the second straight year, was charged with attempting the sale in Phoenix, Ariz.

He was released on $10,000 bond furnished by team attorney Robert Engel after a preliminary hearing before federal magistrate Ila Jean Sensenich.

After the hearing, he returned with Engel to the Steelers training camp at St Vincent College in Latrobe, Pa.

Federal officials arrested him at the training camp about noon Thursday.

Further details on the charges and circumstances of the arrest were not immediately available.

Reavis was a three-year letterman at defensive tackle and end for the University of Arkansas before being drafted in the fifth round by Pittsburgh in 1973

When he was switched to the offensive line by the Steelers last summer, he quit the team.

But this year, Coach Chuck Noll said he was one of the most improved players in camp.

The Steelers said they hoped that since legal charges are still pending, Reavis will be able to play for the team this season.

Connors, Metreveli advance

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — In a prelude to next month's Davis Cup action, Russia's Alex Metreveli defeated India's Vijay Amritraj 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, in a long, grueling quarter-final match Friday at the $50,000 Eastern Lawn Tennis Open.

The Davis Cup semifinal match between the two countries begins Sept. 20 and will be held on grass courts in India. Metreveli and Amritraj are their country's top players.

After the match, Amritraj said that next month the conditions "will definitely be different Today we were both relaxed In the Davis Cup it's going to be who can stand the most pressure."

The tourney's top-seeded Jimmy Connors and eighth-seeded Billy Martin engaged in an exciting match filled with long volleys, uncommon on the grass surface.

Connors, 21, current Wimbledon champ who has been seeded first at next week's open, bested the 17-year-old Palos Verdes, Calif., youngster, 6-4, 6-3, in the quarterfinal action.

The left-handed superstar became visibly disturbed with the crowd when they cheered a double fault on match point. "A double fault is a bad, bad error," Connors said. "These people have been around tennis long enough to know that."

In the two other quarter-final matches, Kim Warwick of Australia beat Sherwood Stewart of Baytown, Tex., 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, while the tourney's sixth-seeded Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was upset by Anand Amritraj, 7-6, 6-4.

NBA approves 10-team playoffs, sale of Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — The National Basketball Association adopted a 10-team playoff plan Thursday, adding a pair of three-game matches to the post-season playoffs.

By a vote of 18-0, club owners also approved sale of the Detroit Pistons from Fred Zollner to a Detroit group headed by industrialist William Davidson.

The new playoff plan first must be approved the the NBA Players' Association because of a clause in their current pact with the owners calling for a maximum of 21 playoff games.

Under the new plan, the top two teams in each of four divisions would be guaranteed spots in the playoffs. After that, the best remaining team in each of the NBA's two conferences would become the ninth and 10th teams.

The two new teams will be selected on a basis of best winning percentage, under the owners' plan.

The five teams in the East and West conferences, once selected, would be listed numerically according to won-lost records. Team No. 4 would play team No. 5 in the new setup, with the winners becoming team No. 4 in each conference of the former NBA playoff system.

Under that system, No. 1 plays No. 4 while No. 2 plays No. 3 in a best-of-seven series. The winners play each other for the conference title and the two conference winners meet for the NBA championship.

Lynn to assist Vikings' Winter

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — President Max Winter of the Minnesota Vikings has named Mike Lynn as "assistant to the president," and Lynn will take over some of the duties handled by General Manager Jim Finks prior to his resignation.

Lynn, 38, formerly headed Mid-South Sports, Inc., a group seeking a National Football League franchise for Memphis, Tenn.

Lynn has been at the Vikings' training camp in Mankato for several days and has been talking with some of the 17 unsigned veteran players.

"I will be assisting Max in operations of the club and assuming some of his duties in a gradual sort of way," Lynn said.

Directors of the NFL club will meet Sunday to formally approve the appointment of Lynn.

Injuries mar UW practice

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin varsity underwent its first practice scrimmage of the season Friday, and the injury roster swelled as the Badgers shook out off-season kinks.

Quarterback Gregg Bolig of Eau Claire left the field with bruised ribs. Reserve tailback Ron Pollard of Columbus, Ga., reported a groin strain.

First-string flanker Jeff Mack and split end Ray Bailey, both of Chicago, left the field limping.

"It was not a good day, really," coach John Jardine reported. "I think they are all legweary."

The worst news involved reserve linebacker Mike Benninger, who had suffered a knee injury in a previous workout. Jardine said Benninger underwent surgery and will be out for the season.

A free barn dance will start at 8 p. m. The public is being invited.

Iowa State names Trickey

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Ken Trickey, who turned Oral Roberts into a basketball power in five years, was named head basketball coach Friday at Iowa State.

"This is the best opportunity I have ever had in athletics," said the 40-year-old Trickey. "I've always wanted to coach in a prestigious, old school— like Iowa State."

Trickey was given a threeyear contract at a salary believed to be about 24,000 a year to succeed Maury John, who resigned June 30 due to failing health. He has inoperable cancer.

Ken Trickey

"I feel that I've come to a program that is up," said Trickey. "From that standpoint, this is an easy job to come to. Maury John has got this program moving."

Trickey announced that the two current Iowa State assistants—Gus Guydon and Tom Smith—will remain on his staff.

A nine-year college coaching veteran, Trickey compiled a 118-23 record in five years at Oral Roberts in Tulsa, Okla., and guided the Titans to postseason tournaments the last three years.

He said he might have become the victim of a distorted reputation during his coaching time at Oral Roberts.

"I'm a basketball coach, not just an offensive coach," he offered. "We ran and shot a lot at ORU and people got the impression that we didn't play defense.

"But that's not true. We played an exciting game—and won. Here it may be different. I'll let the type of players I have dictate what kind of game we play."

Trickey posted records of 27-4, 21-5, 26-2, 21-6, and 23-6 at Oral Roberts after working at his alma mater, Middle Tennessee State.

Bench paces Reds

MONTREAL (AP) — Johnny Bench drove in four runs with a homer and a single, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 10-7 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

The Reds scored six runs on seven hits in the fifth. Bench's 26th home run of the year scored Pete Rose and Joe Morgan who had singled. Dan Driessen, Cesar Geronimo and George Foster chipped in with run-scoring singles.

Brock 'an artist' on the field

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench thinks Lou Brock can do it.

"I honestly didn't think Maury Wills' record would be broken, but Lou's made a believer out of me," said the Cincinnati Reds All-Star catcher.

"It will be truly unbelievable if he does it," said Bench in tribute of Brock's bid to erase the all-time season stolen-base record.

Brock is closing in on a record that many of baseball's old guard said would remain out of reach for years.

The St. Louis Cardinal star has 86 steals, well ahead of Wills' record pace of 1962. He needs 19 steals in the remaining 37 games to crack the mark.

"I'm glad he's out of our hair," said Bench. The Reds and Cards do not meet again this regular season.

Bench won the last outing in their duel of hare-and-houndsmanship.

"I got him the last two times we played St. Louis," recalled Bench. "But all told, he's got more on me than I've got on him," said the strong-armed Oklahoman, considered by many as one of the best defensive catchers in history.

"He's a true artist in every sense of the word," said Bench. "He's not the fastest guy in baseball, yet he developed his thing and does the most with it."

Brock leads his closest rival, Joe Morgan of the Reds, by 35 steals.

"I don't see anything stopping Lou. He's proven he's durable. The guy is 35 years old. But I don't know what's going through his mind right now.

"There's a combination of things involved. First, the Cards are in a tough pennant race, so he has to be thinking team first. Second, he has to avoid any slump. He has to get on base to steal," said Bench.

"His strength? He's so daring. And he's got his timing down to a split-second. Any time he gets that pitcher to give him a step, he's gone. Sometimes it will be in a pitcher's high kick, or something in the delivery," added Bench.

Courts

Six months of supervision was ordered for a route 5, Appleton youth after he pleaded guilty of possessing beer in Little Chute May 10 A marijuana possession count, brought on the same day, was dismissed

Little Chute police said they arrested the boy, 15, after seeing him leave a tavern with a case of beer They searched him and found a pipe they said contained marijuana

A social study was ordered this week for a 15-year-old Appleton girl who pleaded guilty of burglarizing two cottages near Lakewood in June

Oconto County authorities said she and a man broke into several cottages and took beer, liquor and food

Outagamie County Juvenile Court Judge R Thomas Cane set sentencing for Sept 13

Three children of a rural New London couple will be sentenced Sept 6 for a total of five offenses to which they pleaded guilty Friday in Outagamie County Juvenile Court

Judge R Thomas Cane ordered social studies for the three — a 10-year-old boy and his sisters, 14 and 15

The boy admitted being party to the theft of two bicycles from New London's Hatton Park on June 12 in addition to shoplifting 20 cents worth of caps and a sucker from the Ben Franklin Store, 110 N Water St

The two girls had been charged with being party to a July 30 break in at the A & W Drive In, 1301 Mill St , in which three cartons of cigarettes were reported taken

A 17 year-old Kimberly youth was charged Friday with endangering safety by negligent operation of a vehicle, relating to a July 10 incident on a barricaded stretch of Wellhouse Drive in the village

Police said the boy was driving a car from which he and another person appeared to be removing the lights from one of the street barricades Officer Thomas Oatman approached the vehicle and grabbed the boy's arm

However, the youth stepped on the gas and accelerated from the scene Oatman ran with the vehicle until he fell to the pavement The car continued past a stop sign at Roger and Fulcer streets and moved away from the scene

The boy s case was continued to Monday by Outagamie County Juvenile Court Judge R Thomas Cane

Three Seymour boys, ages 16, 15 and 14, will be sentenced Sept 6 for their parts in a July 14 burglary at the Progressive Farmers store in Seymour The three pleaded guilty Friday before Judge R Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Juvenile Court

Police said seven wristwatches, 12 jackknives and two rifles were taken in the break-in

The 15-year-old youth also admitted breaking into the store on July 7 by sawing off the door knob of the Morrow Street entrance

Cane ordered social studies for the three

Courts

A 17-year-old Appleton girl with a lengthy juvenile record was committed to Lincoln State School this week by Outagamie County Judge R. Thomas Cane.

The girl pleaded guilty of stealing liquor from her father and of possessing five quarts of beer. Appleton police brought the charges after they investigated a complaint that she hosted a beer and liquor party at her home Aug. 3. Police said several minors were at the party. A charge of furnishing liquor to minors was dismissed.

The girl had been under welfare supervision and had been in a foster home. The court was told she was uncontrollable. Cane ordered the parents to contribute $15 per week toward her support at Lincoln.

Robert T. Brouillard, 18, 218 Fidelis St., Appleton, was waived out of Outagamie County Juvenile Court into criminal court this week on a charge of marijuana possession.

Appleton police brought the charge June 29. They said they found marijuana on his person and in his car while they were investigating another complaint. Brouillard's case came into Juvenile Court because he was 17 at the time of the alleged offense. He will appear in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

One year's supervision was ordered this week for a 15-year-old Appleton boy who pleaded guilty of burglarizing the Maynard Prue home, 1405 N. Summit St., July 1. Police said the boy took about $70, which he split with another boy.

Outagamie County Juvenile Court Judge R. Thomas Cane also ordered him to attend the Self-Awareness Seminar for first offenders at Fox Valley Technical Institute.

A 17-year-old route 1, Black Creek boy was placed on supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services until he is 18 after he pleaded guilty of stealing gasoline from buses owned by Robert Dryden of Black Creek. County police said they caught the boy stealing fuel from the buses parked at the south edge of the village on July 16. Juvenile Court Judge R. Thomas Cane suspended the boy's driver's license for three months.

An Oshkosh girl who, with her boyfriend, went on an Appleton shopping spree with someone else's credit card has been sent to Lincoln State School by Outagamie County Juvenile Court Judge R. Thomas Cane.

Cane had found the girl, 17, delinquent and placed her on supervision to the Winnebago County Department of Social Services July 17 after she was found guilty of four counts of aiding and abetting in theft by fraud.

Cane set several conditions of supervision, including a curfew and an order that she was not to associate with a 23-year-old Oshkosh man who also was charged with theft by fraud as the result of credit card purchases in Appleton last April.

The girl was returned to Cane's court this week after her caseworker said she violated rules of supervision. After a hearing, Cane revoked her supervision and committed her to Lincoln. She had a lengthy juvenile record.

Two 17-year-old Appleton boys appeared in Outagamie County Juvenile Court this week on charges that they stole three batteries and a radiator from Valley Auto Parts on May 6 and robbed an Appleton youth of $8 April 21.

The robbery charges were amended to disorderly conduct for one boy and theft for the other boy. The youths pleaded no contest and were found guilty.

One boy was placed on supervision until he is 18 and was ordered to make $2.67 restitution to the boy whose money was taken and $29.50 restitution to Valley Auto Parts.

The second youth will be sentenced Sept. 6. Jury trials had been scheduled for both youths.

The theft of two 25-pound bags of modeling clay from a janitor's room at Jefferson School June 24 has resulted in a 12-year-old Appleton boy's being placed on one year of supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services. He pleaded guilty to the charge in Juvenile Court.

Two injured in crash

Two persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital about 8:30 p.m. Friday with injuries they suffered in a pickup truck-sports car collision at State and Fifth streets. Appleton firemen place Verna Fischer, 58, 1526 N. Clark St., on a stretcher. She was a passenger in the truck driven by Leonard P. Hermes, 49, 1526 N. Clark St. She suffered leg and head injuries. James A. Holcomb, 26, 831 Midway Road, Menasha, driver of the car, had a side injury. His car came to rest on a lawn. (Post-Crescent photo)

Dix included in list of those failing to meet filing deadline

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Russel H. Dix of Kaukauna, a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 5th District Assembly race, has been added to the list of 30 state candidates who have failed to meet the financial filing deadline set by the new election law.

Dix, who is seeking to unseat incumbent Democratic Assemblyman William Rogers, was required to file campaign committee reports with the new state election board by Aug. 6.

A list of 29 other candidates who failed to file was released by board executive director Tod Meserow, Thursday, but Dix's name was not included. A board spokesman said his name was accidentally omitted from the original list.

Jeffrey Kuesel, acting legal counsel for the board, said the violations will be forwarded to the state election board for future action.

He noted that either the board or the Dane County District Attorney's office could pursue the matter further.

"Because there are so many violations the board might feel that there is a reason to take significant action," Kuesel said.

"But the board might also decide to let it go this time because the law is new."

All campaign committees will be required to file another report with the board before Sept. 2.

Police & fire beat

Appleton police are investigating the theft of three batteries, two chrome wheels and a radio from cars at C & T American, Inc., 1850 W. Wisconsin Ave. The thefts were reported Friday.

Dennis Bauer, 716 E. Pacific St., told Appleton police Friday night that a tent, three air mattresses and three personal bank checks were stolen from his home.

A camera valued at between $600 and $800 was reported stolen Sunday from Bruce Kemps' photo studio, 1112 S. Madison St.

Thomas E. Church, 23, Shiocton, was treated for head injuries and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital after his car left the pavement and crashed into a power pole. The accident took place in the 2400 block of N. Richmond Street just before 1 a.m. Thursday.

LITTLE CHUTE — Police are investigating a break-in and theft of about $125 in cash from Karen and Averd's Bar, 1420 E. Main St., after 3 a.m. Wednesday.

A printed note, "American Revolutionary Force was here," was found in the bar. Also on the note was the message, "We left your party jar." The money was taken from an unlocked cash register and drawer behind the bar. Entry was gained by removing a storm window from a bathroom window and opening the inside window, which had not been locked.

Karen Wagnitz, operator of the bar, said she worked until 3 a.m.

Dishes, utensils, a lamp, radio and other items were reported taken in a break-in Wednesday at the Wendy R. Wichman residence, 509½ N. Mason St. Police said the goods were valued together at more than $100.

Valley industrial wage earners getting $20 more than last year

The average industrial wage earner in the Appleton-Oshkosh area received nearly $20 per week more in July 1974 than he did for the same month in 1973, according to the July monthly report of the Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

A year ago, the average worker made $176 per week during July, while this year, he made $196, an increase of $20 a week.

That figure includes a $1.54 a week increase over June 1974. The increase was due to an average hourly wage increase of five cents.

The $196 figure ranks seventh in the state, and well above the national average of $176. Kenosha County has the state's highest paid workers, averaging $245 a week, up over $30 weekly since 1973. The state average is $194.

The increase in average earnings in the area may be traced to two main factors. First, hourly wages improved from an average of $4.22 in 1973 to $4.62 in 1974, an increase of 40 cents per hour. Secondly, workers are averaging about seven-tenths of an hour more on the job, meaning more overtime pay.

The $4.62 an hour figure compares favorably with the national average, but is below the state average of $4.40, and well under the $5.48 average in Kenosha County.

Employment in the Appleton-Oshkosh area was also up, by about 2.5 per cent. This figure includes a one per cent jump between June and July this year.

Eric Baker, a Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations official, said the increase in employment is due to "the mere fact that demand for the products of the area, and I'm referring mainly to paper, has not decreased."

Baker said that the increase would probably have been even larger if raw materials were more readily available. "Because of the steel and paper pulp shortages, many companies have been unable to meet demands like they would have liked to," he said.

"As long as the industries in the area can obtain the raw materials they need, I foresee no large scale unemployment for the Fox Valley area," he said. "In fact, I think this area has a one-half to one per cent better average than the statewide average for unemployment."

Dyke prods Lucey on bid for debate

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — William Dyke, unopposed candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, Friday prodded Democratic incumbent Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey on arrangements for a series of public debates the governor suggested more than two months ago.

Dyke asked Lucey to name a representative immediately to discuss arrangements for a series of joint discussions that he said probably would be broadcast by Wisconsin radio and television stations and widely covered by the press.

A spokesman said the Dyke campaign headquarters regards a series of six discussions on the issues by the aspirants to the state's highest office as appropriate.

The Dyke headquarters evidently assumes that such debate would be held after the primary. Lucey has an opponent for his party's nomination, although the bid of Edmond Hou-Seye, Sheboygan, is not generally regarded as serious.

Dyke said his representative, in negotiating arrangements for joint appearances for the candidates, will be Jack Olson, former lieutenant governor and 1970 Republican candidate for governor who lost to Lucey.

Dyke was closely associated with Olson during the latter's service in state government.

The Republican candidate said he will adjust his schedule to the extent necessary to accommodate the debate proposal and asked that Lucey do so also, "before it is too late to make these adjustments."

Pork producers twilight meeting at Black Creek farm

The Outagamie County Pork Producers Association will discuss ways to improve production during a swine twilight meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the farm of Elwood Raether, route 2, Black Creek.

Raether is secretary of the county organization which works to improve swine production and marketing.

University of Wisconsin extension service Prof. Ered Giesler will describe the proper management of swine during the meeting.

Giesler also will serve as judge in a gilt judging contest. There also will be a weight guessing contest during the meeting.

Prizes will be presented and a lunch is planned, according to Hubert Hafs, University of Wisconsin extension service farm management agent in Outagamie County. Robert Griffiths, route 1, Black Creek, is president of the county group.

Wolff named an officer of police chiefs group

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — Tony Paris of Rhinelander was elected president of the Wisconsin Police Chiefs Association Wednesday. He succeeds Charles Kuhn of Menomonee Falls.

Other officers elected at the group's annual meeting were Muarry Cochran of Janesville, first vice president; Frank Riemer Jr. of Germantown, second vice president; and Earl Wolff of Appleton, third vice president.

City gets $100,000 park grant

WEYAUWEGA — The city has received a $100,000 grant from the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission to help finance a water and sewer project in the industrial park

In making the announcement Friday, Gov Patrick J Lucey said the grant will help finance a portion of the $466,000 project and assure retention of 250 jobs and probably add another 400 jobs during the next two to three years

U S Rep Harold Froehlich, R Appleton, last week announced the approval of a $50,000 Farmers Home Administration grant for the same sewer and water project

Lucey said Upper Great Lakes funds are to be used as local contributions to community development projects necessary for job creation and retention and for demonstration and technical assistance programs designed for long range economic development

The Upper Great Lakes grant for Weyauwega is part of $341,558 in economic development grants approved by that commission Friday Among the other grants was one for $58,000 to the University of Wisconsin-Extension for demonstration of ways to protect recreation lakes and streams near agricultural lands

WAUKESHA, Wis (AP) — Tony Paris of Rhinelander was elected president of the Wisconsin Police Chiefs Association Wednesday He succeeds Charles Kuhn of Menomonee Falls

Other officers elected at the group's annual meeting were Muarry Cochran of Janesville, first vice president, Frank Riemer Jr of Germantown, second vice president, and Earl Wolff of Appleton, third vice president

Appleton Papers will appeal DILHR ruling

Commissioners of the State Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations have ruled that Appleton Papers-Division of NCR discriminated against one of its employes by failing to pay her disability income benefits when she left work to have a baby two years ago

A company spokesman said the firm would appeal the ruling and noted that state and federal courts have supported positions similar to Appleton Papers' in other cases

The three commissioners ordered the company to include disability due to pregnancy or childbirth in its weekly disability income insurance plan and to pay Linda Schmitz, route 4, Appleton the benefits she would have received at the time

Schmitz left work at the company from May 1, 1972, until July 9, 1972, and delivered her child May 16, 1972 She was denied disability payments for that period and filed a complaint with the state department charging the company with violating the Wisconsin Fair Employment Law

An initial determination by a department examiner concluded that Schmitz did have cause for action A hearing was held in January in the Outagamie County courthouse Hearing agent Bruce Schrimpf recommended that Schmitz be paid the benefits Final oral arguments were made to the commissionefs July 8

Schrimpf also included in the case a recommendation that the firm be directed to pay Schmitz's medical and hospitalization costs, but the commission chose not to include that in the case in its ruling

A company spokesman said the firm has a hospitalization and medical program, but that it was optional at the time, and Schmitz had chosen not to participate in it She had not filed a complaint regarding such payments

The company spokesman said, however, the firm didn't have a policy of paying sickness and accident benefits for lost pay in maternity cases and still doesn't pay these He said "that is an issue that must still be answered by the courts"

He noted a Circuit Court case earlier this month in Madison involving a corporation and a U S high court case involving the State of California, and said that both decisions backed the position of employers seeking to not pay such benefits

Schmitz is in the sorting department at Appleton Papers

Waupaca teachers ratify '74 contract

WAUPACA — Members of the Waupaca Teachers Association have ratified their 1974-75 contract agreement and it now remains for the board of education to give its final approval

Agreement on the contract language and the salary schedule was reached the last week in July but final signatures were withheld when the new item in the contract, dealing with merit pay, required further clarification

The WTA bargaining team was concerned about the $15,000 merit pool contained in the new contract Teachers were asking for a merit raise ceiling of $300 and $600 per teacher and the board of education was asking for an open-end merit increase for deserving teachers

This was the issue for teachers Thursday when the proposed agreement came to a vote It was agreed unanimously, in that vote that the administration can select the teachers for merit evaluation and grant an increase up to 10 per cent of the base pay for starting teachers, or $795 Such raises must be approved by the board

"This is more generous than the board had interpreted it to be in the original contract language," a board spokesman said Friday "We are pleased and believe that this will be an incentive for teachers as well as a fair way to repay those teachers who are doing an exceptional job"

The WTA members also were pleased with the challenge and its possible rewards The association is the sole bargaining agent for the district's 108 teachers, and a quick calculation by an association official at this time is that 91 teachers belong to the WTA

The board of education will meet to ratify the contract after the public hearing on the budget at 8 p m , Tuesday, in the high school auditorium When this detail is taken care of individual contracts will be prepared for signature This is the third consecutive year that teachers in the Waupaca Unified School District have started teaching without a signed contract

"The rapport between the association and the board this year, particularly during the final months of bargaining, has been exceptionally good," Thomas Radler, WTA spokesman said Friday "The teachers are very pleased about this and we expect this will be an exceptionally good year"

The new contract calls for a bachelor of arts beginning teacher base of $7,950 and an $8,500 base for teachers with a master of arts degree at the first level

The 4 per cent accumulative increment clause in the salary schedule was retained Increases in the base pay average 6 2 per cent and there are substantial increases in the extra curricular pay schedule, ranging from 16 to 32 per cent

New in the contract are the deduction of dues from member teachers of the Waupaca Teachers Association and the requirement of a teacher to attend scheduled faculty meetings unless excused by an administrator

In addition to the salary gains, the teachers will have an amount equal to 5 per cent of their gross salary paid by the board toward the teacher's share of contributions to teacher retirement, a two cent increase in mileage when on school business (will be 12 cents) and the board paying up to $6,000 toward the purchase of short term and long term disability insurance for the teachers

Lucey chooses DeBruin for waste recycling panel

MADISON — Joseph H DeBruin, an Outagamie County Board member from rural Kaukauna, Friday was chosen by Gov Patrick J Lucey to serve on the new, seven member Solid Waste Recycling Authority which will oversee initiation of a pilot recycling program in the Fox Valley

DeBruin, a veteran board member was a leading force in county establishment of a solid waste shredder system expected to go into operation in Appleton soon

Lucey picked Vinton Bacon, a professor of civil engineering from the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee, to chair the authority

Bacon was superintendent of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Chicago

Others named to the authority were Betty Harriman of Oshkosh, Richard Jann, Eau Claire, Wausau Mayor John Kannenburg and James Lynn and Arlo Paul, both of Milwaukee

Paul was vice chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Recycling

The appointments are subject to Senate confirmation The Senate comes back into session next January

The authority will be responsible for establishing a pilot recycling project for Fond du Lac Outagamie and Winnebago counties

Construction contracts for a recycling center to serve the three county test area could be let as early as next spring

Local governments will continue to gather the materials for recycling with the new authority taking responsibility for the collection points and central plant

Detoxification study success in Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — The recent in service training program for hospital personnel dealing with emergency detoxification has been termed a success and significant step in the right direction for implementing the new law which requires that intoxicated persons be treated as ill rather than jailed

"The program offered at Clintonville Community Hospital and Shawano Hospital was enthusiastically endorsed by the directors of nursing at both facilities and their staffs," said Karl Hammerburg, coordinator of alcohol and drug abuse for the Unified Health Services of Shawano and Waupaca counties

"They agreed that it was sorely needed and expressed their wish for additional sessions he said

Mrs Carol Olson, R N , former director of Bellin Memorial Hospital's alcoholism treatment unit Green Bay presented the program

Present plans call for another program for nurses, emergency personnel and physicians, to be conducted in another location to serve the two counties

Attending the first session were 39 nurses, orderlies, and emergency medical personnel including 20 from New London Community Hospital, 13 from Shawano Hospital, three from Clintonville Community Hospital, two from Riverside Community Hospital, Waupaca and one from the Outagamie County Health Center, Appleton
